Dear Parent/Carer

I'm writing to you with some developments to our existing offer of period products in school. This letter is being distributed to all Farlingaye students, therefore if it is not relevant to your child, please disregard it.

As part of the governments Period Products Scheme, we are able to offer students a range of period products free in school. These are currently available from the PSHE Hub, safeguarding, heads of years offices, reception, students support and some subject team rooms.

No one should have to miss out on education because of their period, so if students need sanitary products, these, plus replacement tights and period pants are also available for students from reception and the PSHE Hub.

Alongside the provision of products, we are also continuing to educate students on period empathy, and the importance of being respectful of one another to help reduce the stigmas and shame surrounding periods.

Providing sanitary products when they are needed in school will always be our priority however, we would now like to set up an order system to be able to send larger quantities of products home for students to be able to have them when they need them. This is also an opportunity for students to try out more sustainable products for free.

Please find attached an information diagram outlining the different products on offer, and find below the link to the online order form.

Once received orders will be prepared as quickly as possible, you will receive an email when they are ready for collection from school reception. Products will be packed in plain bags for discretion and can be collected by students or parent/carers. All products are subject to availability.

We look forward to receiving your orders, if you have any questions, please contact hjerrold@farlingaye.suffolk.sch.uk

Kind regards
